Fan cam shows JEA CEO Aaron Zahn Council President Scott Wilson, Mayor Lenny Curry and Chief Administrative Officer Brian Hughes with lobbyists Sam Mousa and Tim Baker at Oct. 4 Atlanta Braves postseason game.

Mayor Lenny Curry, Council President Scott Wilson, then-JEA CEO Aaron Zahn and city top administrator Brian Hughes went to an Atlanta Braves postseason game Oct. 4 with lobbyists Sam Mousa and Tim Baker.

They traveled on a private plane on the a trip organized by Conventus LLC, a company run by Mousa and Baker.

We posted a story Tuesday about the cost of the trip for city officials and the questions it raised and reported that the city's Ethics Commission has sought information about the trip. You can read that story here.

Now we have a photo of the group at the game from the fan cam. The wide view shows the group had pretty nice seats — which included access to an exclusive lounge with unlimited food, beer and wine — that are two and three rows behind the visitors' dugout.
